

FRIDAY STRIKE ACTION – YOU ARE LEGALLY PROTECTED

Toll is spreading a lot of misinformation about the upcoming strikes. This is a common management tactic to scare, trick and intimidate union members about to take action.

But Toll's games are not working, with thousands of members still pledging to take action right across Australia on Friday.

TWU members have bargained for a fair deal in good faith. When parties can't reach agreement union members have a legal right to take protected industrial action. The requirements of the Fair Work Act to hold a PAB and provide notice have been completed.

Therefore all TWU members who strike on Friday from midnight-to-midnight are legally protected.

WHAT DOES THAT LEGAL PROTECTION MEAN?

- Toll cannot take adverse action against you - it is illegal for them to do so
- You do not have to fill out any form about your participation
- If misinformation is being spread, you should report it to your delegates

Rather than intimidating the workforce and tricking people into working, Toll should stop attacking your job security and offer a fair deal.

You deserve less tricks and more respect.

Join members in the huge national mass
Zoom meeting on Friday. Register here:

bit.ly/TollStrikeWebinar

You MUST be a TWU member to take part in protected action. Join at twu.com.au/join