TWU members were surveyed about what they want to see in the next EA, and the results are in...

95% of respondents feel that the current agreement does not deliver fair standards for them and their families.

98% of respondents believe that duty hours are an important issue for bargaining.

95% said that an industry-competitive increase to pay rates that keeps pace with cost-of-living inflation is a very important issue for bargaining.

74% believe that improving minimum rest away from home base is a very important issue going into the next round of bargaining.

“ We definitely need longer layovers, and increase in DTA, and a massive reduction in daily duty hours.

“ The most important thing is bringing hours back to 10.
