

AAE Next Steps: Members want change.

AAE members were asked to have their say through the bargaining survey. The results are clear, consistent, and send a strong message to Qantas: the agreement no longer reflects the work we do or the standards we deserve.

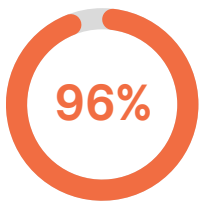

of AAE workers said the current Enterprise Agreement does not deliver fair standards for them or their families.

What AAE members strongly support

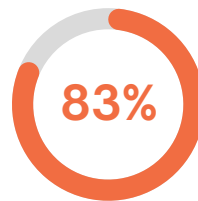

There was broad support across the workforce for key improvements, including:

- ✔ More access to permanent full-time employment
- ✔ Restrictions on labour hire, to protect secure jobs
- ✔ Increase minimum weekly hours for part-time workers to 30hrs
- ✔ Minimum manning levels for specific operations to ensure safety and fairness
- ✔ Stronger redundancy protections, including safeguards against forced transfers

Pay and penalties are a top priority of members said competitive pay rates that keep pace with the cost of living are very important of members said securing better penalties, overtime provisions, and allowances is very important

Why hasn't bargaining started for the AAE group?

Qantas has not initiated bargaining for AAE and continues to drag its feet.

We've been pushing for:

- Full consolidation of QGS, QAL and AAE agreements, so ground handling workers can bargain together as one united workforce.
- This strategy strengthens bargaining power, job security, and delivers better outcomes for everyone.
- The once market leading standards of AAE has been systematically attacked over the last decade, and we need to ensure that stops.

The old Qantas model of divide and conquer needs to end.

What happens next

- Regardless of Qantas' delays, the TWU will be issuing claim endorsement communications to AAE members shortly.
- This will give you the opportunity to endorse the priorities and direction of the fight for a consolidated agreement.
- Keep an eye out for the claim endorsement soon. Standing together is how we win.

Join the union that fights.
