

PREPARE FOR 24-HOUR ACTION AT FEDEX

FEDEX WORKERS HAVE HAD ENOUGH

Instead of listening to workers, FedEx has:

- ✗ Refused to deliver wage increases or key job security protections
- ✗ Bullied and intimidated workers
- ✗ Spread misinformation
- ✗ Shut down negotiations
- ✗ Tried to rush through two agreements that have been voted down

FEDEX GOING EVEN LOWER

After months of delays, FedEx is now refusing to back-date wage increases to the expiry of the agreement.

Its offer already fails to keep pace with inflation.

FedEx now also wants to pocket months of pay increases while workers continue to struggle with rising costs of living.

WE'VE GIVEN FEDEX EVERY CHANCE

Following the second rejected vote, the TWU has written to FedEx again to give the company every opportunity to restart negotiations and move on outstanding issues. FedEx's response is due today.

The company now faces a simple choice:

- Return to negotiations and move on workers' claims OR
- Face industrial action on Thursday.

PREPARE FOR ACTION ON THURS

If FedEx still refuses to move, workers must be ready to stand together and take protected industrial action this Thursday—right ahead of senior US FedEx representatives being in Australia, with the company a major NFL sponsor.

You're not alone

Thousands of transport workers across Australia will be taking action to close the gap, lift standards and win better outcomes across the industry.
