

GET THE FACTS & STAY INFORMED

Recently, Centurion released communications and mailed workers about the bargaining process. We've received a lot of questions so here are some answers:

Q. I received a letter that said the agreement was going to a vote?

A. Centurion have told the bargaining committee that this letter was a mistake. The agreement is NOT ready for a vote.

Q. Is the agreement nearly finished?

A. The bargaining committee has made a lot of progress on the agreement, but there is still work to be done. Every worker classification has serious concerns that need to be addressed.

Q. When is the next bargaining meeting?

A. 30th September 2026.

Q. We hear one thing from Centurion and a different thing from the TWU, who should I listen to?

A. Centurion protects their shareholders. The TWU protects workers pay and conditions. Listen to your TWU delegates.

Q. What happens if the agreement is put to a vote, but the TWU says it still has issues?

A. We will update you if that happens, but the short answer is that we will send a strong message by asking workers to vote no to any undercooked proposed agreement.

Q. What happens next?

A. The TWU is seeking to fix as many issues as possible during the next bargaining meeting on 30th Sept 2026.

If the agreement is ready – the TWU announces an in-principle agreement. If it's not ready – we continue to apply pressure on Centurion to advance our claims. Now is the most important time to be a TWU member. Our union continues to advance our claims, but every member makes us stronger. A stronger union means a better agreement to support you and your family.
